

Why were John Lennon and Yoko Ono in bed with a bicycle?

Conference with Marco te Brömmelstroet

Thursday, 21st of November 2024 at 19h00

Oekozenner Pafendall - 6, rue Vauban L-2663 Luxembourg

Presentation in English, translation to Luxembourgish available.

The presentation will be followed by a Q&A and a cocktail.

Marco te Brömmelstroet (@fietsprofessor) is chair of Urban Mobility Futures at the Amsterdam Institute for Social Science Research at the University of Amsterdam, which leads research into the reciprocal relations between cycling, society and cities.

Marco aims to uncover the underlying language and assumptions that impact our mobility choices and cycling offers him a lens to radically reimagine the way in which society thinks about mobility, transport systems, and the street.

He is also the founding academic director of the Urban Cycling Institute, Chairman of the Board of the Dutch Cycling Academy and co-author of the book 'Movement: how to take back our streets and transform our lives'.
